ENJOY A NIGHT FIT FOR A QUEEN.

If you’re looking for a hearty meal accompanied by knights on thundering stallions, just head over to your nearest 11th century Spanish castle in Schaumburg, Illinois.

Casting a queen answered numerous audience requests for more significant roles for women in the show. Chicago actress Allyssa O’Donnell is one of four actresses who play the feisty Queen on different days. The role, says Ms. O’Donnell, who was Princess Catalina in the previous show, sends a message of empowerment.

“It’s always important to give little girls a positive role model,” she told the Chicago Tribune. “It is so important to give them a strong woman to look up to.”

Gates to the Castle open 90 minutes before the show. After getting your seating ticket and your paper crown (more about that later) feel free to wander the Great Hall. Check out the medieval weapons exhibit, war horses in their stables behind a glass wall, a gift shop that’s a kid magnet, full-service bar for the adults and ‘dress-up’ photo ops with the Queen and her handsome Lord Chamberlain.

And about that paper crown: Its color denotes which one of the six knights you’ll be stomping your feet and whooping for during the tournament. Be a sport and put it on, or you might get some gentle ribbing from the performers.

The tournament itself takes place inside a huge arena. Tiered stands, able to seat over 1,400 guests, surround a performance area about the size of an NHL hockey rink.

The all new, two-hour production is an action film that’s come to life, with intricate lighting effects and a surging symphonic score precisely synchronized with every choreographed moment.

The show begins with swirling smoke and regal music. Making her entrance astride a white Andalusian stallion – first bred 1,000 years ago to carry Spanish knights into battle – Queen Isabella triumphantly greets the cheering crowd and then takes her throne to preside over a tournament that will determine the best knight in the realm. There’ll be trouble along the way; one unenlightened knight isn’t too happy about working for a woman.

There are stunts on horseback, an amazing dressage performance and a royal falconer, whose bird of prey may zoom right over your head. Then the actual jousting and fighting begins. Will your knight reign triumphant?

Sparks fly from clashing broadswords. Twelve-foot lances shatter. All of the breathtaking combat sequences are fought with real weapons and armor, handcrafted at an armory in Florida. Horses play significant roles in the show. Twenty-five are stabled on the premises, with 17 rotated in for every performance. Raised from foals, each is intensively trained for at least three years before making its debut.

The horse may perform for up to 12 years before retiring to a life of leisure on a horse farm. Of course, Medieval Times is not only about queens, knights and trusty steeds. It’s also about hearty eating.

Vegetarian meals are also available. Alcoholic beverages are optional. Don’t look for silverware. Everyone eats with their hands and slurps from pewter bowls, just as they did in days of yore.

Medieval Times is a signature Chicago Northwest experience not to be missed. Make your reservations, and get ready for a knight to remember.

“Bright blue sparks fly from clashing broadswords. Twelve-foot lances shatter. All of the breathtaking combat sequences are fought with real weapons and armor,”

First opened in 1927, Arlington International has been called "America’s most beautiful racetrack." And it’s easy to see why. The immaculate grounds are lushly landscaped with manicured lawns, flower displays and stands of trees. The track’s infield is graced with majestic weeping willows and a large blue pond. An impressive, six-story grandstand overlooks the famed one-mile and one-eighth oval track and can seat 50,000 cheering fans. Tickets are very affordable. And if you buy your tickets in advance, you’ll also enjoy discounts. If you like your horses close up, stroll to the paddock area where the steeds are walked just before each race. By the way, the extensive stables on the backstretch can shelter over 2,000 horses.

If you like your horses close up, stroll to the paddock area where the steeds are walked just before each race. By the way, the extensive stables on the backstretch can shelter over 2,000 horses. Not sure how to bet? Take a free ‘Betting 101’ class before the first race and learn the basics of wagering. One of the choices you’ll make is where to sit. Lawn seating and benches are free. The options go up from there: Standard Box seating, Executive Boxes and Luxe Boxes. Where you sit (and dine) determines how you’ll dress. Casual clothes are fine for the Pavilion, while fancy dress is required at the elegant Governor’s Room.

Food at Arlington International is exceptional, and there are plenty of options: from burgers, BBQ, carved meats and more at the first-floor food court, to the refined pub fare of the Cowboy Grill, to the elegant dining experience of The Million Room. Adults can rock out at one of the lively Party in the Park After Dark bashes, featuring live music, games and plenty to eat and drink. Sample the enticing fare of the Food Truck Festival. Hoist a glass at Septemberfest. Enjoy family movie nights and lots more.

It’s off to the races at Arlington International Racecourse, exquisite home of Thoroughbred racing…and family fun. If you’ve never experienced the out-and-out excitement of this horseracing jewel, now’s the time. There’s no better place to be on a sunny afternoon. Take in the festive atmosphere. Admire the jockeys in their colorful silks atop sleek Thoroughbreds. Place a bet. Then listen to the thundering hooves and the roar of the crowd as the horses surge to the finish line. The racing season runs from early May to September, and there are 71 racing days to choose from.

Arlington International is easy to get to. There’s plenty of parking. And Metra trains from Chicago stop near the front gates.

Arlington International is a destination for the entire family. You’ll find plenty of exciting events for every age.

Arlington International is also a destination for the entire family. You’ll find plenty of exciting events for every age. On the last Sunday of every month, Arlington International pulls out all the stops with a themed Family Day, featuring concerts, roving magicians, crafts, face painting, a petting zoo, pony rides and pint-sized amusement rides.

Arlington International is easy to get to. There’s plenty of parking. And Metra trains from Chicago stop near the front gates.

The highlight of the season is the world-famous Arlington Million (America’s first ever million-dollar Thoroughbred race) in early August. It’s an international turf showcase of champion Thoroughbreds. The fashions and pageantry are sights to behold. Be sure to reserve your spot ahead of time. Horse racing isn’t the only pastime that draws visitors.

The MAN WHO REMADE ARLINGTON INTERNATIONAL

Born six years before the racetrack originally opened in 1927, owner Richard ‘Mr. D’ Duchossois has been the charismatic guiding force at Arlington for over 35 years. He purchased the track, which had seen better days, in 1984, only to see it burn down the following year. Rebuilding the racetrack at an estimated $200 million (almost $500 million today), Duchossois rescued Arlington International and remade it into America’s most elegant and exciting destination for Thoroughbred racing. By the way, his namesake sports bar Mr. D’s is a great place to watch the races.

Want that genuine Weber grilling experience without picking up a pair of tongs? The sizzling Weber Grill Restaurant in Schaumburg, near Woodfield Mall, is for you. In the expansive open kitchen, you can watch skilled grill chefs cook your meal over hardwood charcoal heated to 1500˚F in giant Weber Ranch kettles. The restaurant runs through about 2,000 pounds of charcoal each day. Favorites include hand-cut Black Angus steaks, wood-smoked barbecue, fire-inspired seasonal entrees, charcoal-seared burgers and fresh grilled seafood.

You can also host a barbecue of your own. Weber Grill is event-friendly – with private rooms for group dining and an outdoor patio for warm months. And, if you’re looking to take your home grilling to the next level, join one of the grilling demonstrations or sign up for a grilling class. See listing in Dining on page eight.

One day in Chicago in 1952, George Weber, tired of having his food ruined by smoke-belching charcoal box grills, sawed a steel marine buoy in half at his father’s metal fabrication factory. He poked holes in the top, added a handle and legs. And the world-famous Weber kettle grill was born.

Enter the huge and bustling Mitsuwa Marketplace in Arlington Heights, and be prepared to immerse yourself in the aromas, sights and flavors of Japan. The largest Japanese supermarket in the Midwest, Mitsuwa attracts people from across Illinois and neighboring states. It’s a food lover’s paradise. You won’t just find all you need to make your favorite Asian dishes; you’ll also experience the authentic feel of a Tokyo market.

The food court is impressive. In addition to Japanese offerings – such as tempura, ramen, soba and sushi – you can experience Korean and Chinese cuisine. There’s also a Japanese bakery offering red bean cake, curry cake, mochi and more. It’s all feast, so come hungry.

Wander beyond the delicacies of the food court, and you’ll find a hair salon, cosmetic store, housewares store, a video shop and a bookstore. See listing in Things to Do on page four.

Step inside the communities that make up Chicago Northwest. Be a local.

For more details about our communities, check out ChicagoNorthwest.com.
The Chicago Northwest area is on the edge of O'Hare International Airport and at the crossroads of major highways. Just a quick Metra train ride, and you'll be in historic and exciting downtown Chicago in a matter of minutes!
Church Street Brewing Company in Itasca is known for its German-style brews (such as Helles Bock, Kellerbier, Doppelbock and Marzen) and super-friendly staff. Nine outstanding beers are on tap. Enjoy them in the tasting room or on the outdoor patio. Hungry? Have food delivered from local eateries. Church Street is part of the Illinois Made program, which recognizes the makers, creators and artisans who make Illinois thrive.

At Cooper’s Hawk Winery & Restaurant in Arlington Heights, you’ll settle into the modern tasting room of this upscale, wine-themed restaurant and delve deeply into a heady world of reds, whites and rosés. The award-winning winery produces nearly 50 varieties. You can also order your flights at the bar and snack on yummy small plates.

Itasca Brewing Company in Itasca is a nano brewery that’s big on flavors and imagination. The cozy tasting room offers a rotating selection of eight brews. Some are straight ahead, such as ales, stouts and lagers. Others have a head all their own, like Meemaw’s Oatmeal Cookies – a brown ale brewed with oats and brown sugar, aged on cinnamon sticks and vanilla beans, and served with an oatmeal cookie garnish.

Housed in a stately chateau that wouldn’t look out of place in Napa Valley, Lynfred Winery in Roselle is the winner of numerous national and international awards. In the elegant, oak-lined tasting room you can enjoy flights and wine pairings from Lynfred’s impressive portfolio of nearly 100 varieties. And if you reserve in advance, you can also snooze upstairs in one of the four wine-themed B&B suites.

In Elk Grove Village, Mikerphone Brewing’s two-story tall, music-themed taproom seats 45 and offers 12 constantly changing selections on tap. Don’t miss the highly original riffs on stouts, such as the rap-inspired Just Sip The Sizzurp (Imperial Stout with cocoa nibs and chocolate syrup) and fruit-forward IPAs, like Oye Coconut Piña Colada Milkshake (Double IPA with vanilla, lactose, pineapple and coconut).

There are 24 beers and ales on tap at the expansive and lively 84-seat taproom of the Pollyanna Brewing Company-Roselare in Roselle. You can cross seven off your beer bucket list by ordering a flight. Four flavorful flagship beers are always available (Golden Ale, American Pale Ale, West Coast IPA and Porter). For the more adventurous, choose a wide selection of intriguing seasonal, one-offs and experimental specialties. There’s a seasonal beer garden in the back, and you can order food for delivery or from food trucks that often come by.

Looking for an exceptional beer or wine experience? Chicago Northwest is home to some of the Midwest’s best craft breweries and wineries. In their tasting rooms, you can drink it where it’s made. Many offer tasting flights of their first-class beers and wines – at reasonable prices.
P

art gallery, part performance space, part community resource and part educational outreach,
Trickster is something special.

Come for a visit and experience the Native American story.

In Native American lore, a ‘trickster’ is a sacred creature who acts as a disruptor and teacher.

“We chose the name because a ‘trickster’ exists in the stories
every culture, not just Native American, and we want to make sure every culture is welcome at the gallery,” says Joe Podlasek, CEO and former executive director of Chicago’s American Indian Center.

A member of the Lac Courte Oreilles Ojibwa tribe in northern Wisconsin, Podlasek is a genial and knowledgeable presence, ready to answer visitors’ questions and even provide tours.

The first floor art gallery features contemporary Native American art from the 1960s to the present. Much of it is available for purchase. Over 600 pieces of art are on display, including paintings and prints by nationally recognized artists, such as painters Robert Martinez, Robert Wapahi, Robert Redbird, Marian
Snow and Joe Yazzie; master potters
Maria Adelicia and Christine Tosa;
and basket weaver Jonathan Black.

Trickster also highlights the works of ‘other-American’ artists.

“We chose the name because a ‘trickster’ exists in the stories of every culture, not just Native American, and we want to make sure every culture is welcome at the gallery.”

In a nearby room, you’ll find a giant teepee, authentic headdresses, moccasins and jewelry and a huge floor map representing locations of historical indigenous lands. All are part of the “Walking Through Native Lands” exhibit, designed for students, educators and the general public to learn about and explore the Native American story.

The second floor provides space
for art installations, performances, film screenings, cultural workshops, powwows, artist talks and more.

If you’re looking for one-of-a-kind treasures, Trickster’s gift shop is a gift-giver’s delight. Choose from beautiful silver and semiprecious stone jewelry, beadwork, pottery and weavings – all handmade by Native artisans.

Step outside and a winding path takes you through a garden featuring plants used in traditional Native American medicines. You’ll also find an impressive bronze sculpture called “Heart of the Basket Maker,” which honors the skills and artistry of American Indigenous peoples. Its creator Cliff Fragua is the only Native American sculptor to have a work installed in Statuary Hall of the U.S. Capitol.

Native American history, culture and arts
come alive at Trickster in Schaumburg.
Opened in 2005, it is the only Native American owned-and-operated arts center in Illinois.
